

The translation feature enables any organisation to conduct sessions in multiple languages. It allows translators to access a specific interface that facilitates the input of the original audio and the output of the translated audio by selecting the transmission channel.

The Translator's voice will be heard via the secondary language channel. When joining the session as a Translator, the microphone will be inactive (by default). The Participant has the choice of listening to the Presenter or via the Translator by selecting the second language.

The Translator can chat with all the participants, directly on the Room chat. When more than one translator is attending a session the Translators can communicate between each other privately in the translator chat.

Participant view

Participants have the possibility to switch from one language channel to the other by clicking on each tab at any time during the session.
